CONCERNING MANY THINGS

Wild Flower Conservation.
 A good move has been made at one of the country's higher institutions of learning. It is to be more sparing of wild flowers when the students are wandering through the fields or woods.
 A case in point was the decision of the senior class of Mt. Holyoke college, Massachusetts, to abandon the practice of making a laurel chain. The destruction of this beautiful early wild flower has been a general complaint that the students have decided to point the way to conservation.
 Two other decisions of the open places have nearly given way to the destructive habits of those who gather them: trailing arbutus and the dogwood. It practically destroys the arbutus vine if the flower is torn roughly away. Dogwood was very plentiful in this section of the country a quarter of a century ago.
 If more care was shown in the preservation of wild flowers the open places would now be more attractive for those who seek them in hours of leisure. —[Scranton Republican.]

Medical Critic Frenzies.
 In the rather sudden death of Henry Edward Krehbiel of the New York Tribune, the world loses one of its most capable and most celebrated musical critics. For close upon half a century Mr. Krehbiel was an authority upon music and musicians, and for 43 of those years he had handed down his judgments through the columns of the Tribune. He was the dean of the metropolitan critics, and considerably more than that. It may be truly said that he was the last of the old school of painstaking, severely just commentators upon the art. —[Philadelphia Record.]

Motor Law Changes.
 Sitting down around a table and talking over matters as Highway Commissioner Paul D. Wright and his assistants and representatives of motor owners and manufacturers and dealing organizations did in regard to proposed changes in the motor vehicle code is the right way to go about getting needed changes in laws which affect many people in Pennsylvania. It is not so many years ago but what disagreements in legislative hearings were echoed all over the state and some provisions which would have been advantageous for owners as well as public were lost because of the haste in which they were discussed. —[Harrisburg Telegraph.]

Cotillion Soiree at Harrisburg.
 Legislators, in scurrying about for new sources of revenue to fill the depleted treasury at Harrisburg, have trotted out some queer proposals. But the prime in that respect must be awarded to the disciple of Colonel Mulberry Sellers, who sees millions for the state in the taxation of radio sets. —[Philadelphia Bulletin.]

Real Estate Transactions.
 The following sales are reported by the Real Estate Board of Oneonta:

 Vann Sloan has purchased of James May the double house located at 35-37 Pine street. Mr. Sloan will occupy one part and rent the other to William Elliott their 25-acre farm located at Milford. The purchase was made as an investment.

Public Service Hearings.
 There will be a state Public Service hearing at Binghamton this morning at 10 o'clock before Commissioner Blakeslee on the matter of the village of Binghamton relative to increased rates by the Walton People's Telephone company. At 1:30 p. m. there will be a hearing before Assistant Engineer Burkhardt on the matter of the failure of connection between train 55 on the Ontario and Western railway and train 305 on the D. & N. company's railroad at Sidney. Train 55 now leaves Delhi at 7:15 a. m. and reaches Sidney at 9:05 a. m. while train 305, north-bound from Binghamton, arrives in Sidney at 9:25 a. m. The engine now delays in Sidney for some time on the D. & N. and the protesting parties are asking for better connections.

Some Help for Cities.
 It is a little surprising to those who believe in the principle of democracy to hear that city fathers have appeared at the state capital in opposition to the bill providing for home rule for cities under the provisions of the recently adopted amendment to the state constitution. Some of the opposition is based upon very absurd grounds. The matter how much home rule is granted to the cities of the state is a matter of course. The proper thing is to grant as much home rule as the state can afford to give.

THREE MILLIONS FOR ROADS.
 Congress Allocates Above Sum to New York Highways.

Ithaca, Mar. 25.—New York state has been allotted $2,195,493.85 of the road building funds contained in the agricultural appropriations bill passed at the last congress officials of the New York State Farm Bureau federation announced today. As federal aid in highway construction, it will be used in developing a system of roads improving market arteries.

The money will be equalled by a similar appropriation by the state. With addition of county funds, construction in the state will be nearly $10,000,000. The federal bill under $10,000,000. The federal bill under $10,000,000.

The United States was urged by the farm bureau to provide more farm-to-market highways. New York state was allotted a larger sum than any other state with the exception of Texas, which has a far greater territory.

MAKES ENVIABLE RECORD

Rev. Jesse L. Wilson, Native of Portland, Maine, Former Resident of Oneonta, to be Transferred to Binghamton.

The naming of the Rev. Jesse L. Wilson, pastor of the rural Methodist Episcopal church at Harpursville, as assistant to the Rev. D. Stanley Shaw, pastor at the Tabernacle church, this city, is confidently expected at the session of the Synodical conference in Binghamton early next month, says the Binghamton Press.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson is by no means a stranger here. As pastor at Harpursville he lifted an obscure charge into a prominent position, and has erected a splendid edifice. He possesses personal magnetism and high qualities as a leader.

The proposed Tabernacle assistant is a man of deepest religious convictions, and of unusual consecration to his work. He possesses most positive, unswerving faith in the Christian religion, among men, and these are based, in large part, upon his personal experience.

In the fall of 1914 he underwent an operation at the Oneonta hospital, and three weeks later a more serious operation had to be performed in the Albany City hospital, by a prominent surgeon, Dr. Edgar VanDever, who afterward said that he regards the entire Wilson case as nothing short of a miracle.

Mr. Wilson had lost control of his speech, and for three years he fought an uphill struggle back to physical strength and speech. One hearing his stirring addresses today finds it hard to understand the weight of those battles, fought in the quiet of the sick room of the hospital.

Mr. Wilson had acted for five years following his marriage to Miss Rena E. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Richards, 80 Elm street, Oneonta, as an accounting clerk in the Oneonta offices of the Delaware and Hudson company, and had received a call to the Christian ministry about one year before his sickness. He says: "The dedication of my life to Christ and His Kingdom took place on the operating table in the Albany City hospital. How wonderfully God is blessing the people of this 20th century through scientific surgery! I wish to say that I esteem Dr. VanDever not only as a surgeon, but truly as a man of God."

"One of the men who had much to do with my conversion was Dr. Charles S. Pendleton of Oneonta. As the outcome of all my experiences I am glad to say that my voice and health in general are better than ever before."

Any visitor to Harpursville must be impressed by the new church. It stands as a monument to the Rev. Mr. Wilson's ability and the cooperation of Harpursville residents stirred by his example.

Mr. Wilson is a native of Portland, Maine, and was educated in the Portland schools. He was a member of the Portland Y. M. C. A. and the Portland Y. N. C. A.

PAVING PROGRAM

Center Street Included in Plan for Year's Work

PUBLIC WORKS APPROVE

Resolution Authorizing Location of Free Main, Church, Center and Carbon Streets Passed Saturday Evening — Council Meets This Evening to Act on Project.

Center street is to be included in the paving schedule of the board of public works for the current year, the commission at a meeting held Saturday evening deciding to add it to the three streets, Carbon, Church and Main from Luther to Third, which had previously been under consideration and for which plans are practically completed. The position was presented by Dr. Norman W. Getman, who, with the assistance of Secretary Everett Hicks, of the Chamber of Commerce, had circulated it. Mr. Getman stated that there are 47 of the 51 property owners upon the petition and that others had been reported to him as favoring the proposal, but whom he had been unable to see. He also stated that, according to the measurements as given by City Engineer Gurney, the petition represented 2,300 feet out of 4,000 feet facing the street. This petition for center street included only that section from Church street to the Oneonta creek bridge. It is not unlikely that steps will be taken later to have the pavement extend to the entrance of Wilber park, members of the commission thinking that this should be done.

The commission adopted resolutions, individual ones for each, declaring its determination to pave the streets named and in accordance with petitions filed with it, requesting the common council to concur and approve such decision. The council will hold a special meeting this evening to take action upon the request.

In the event the approval is given the public works commission will conduct hearings upon the proposal to pave the four streets on Tuesday evening, April 10th, at which all property owners affected will have a chance to be heard and at which it is quite probable that the attitude of the trolley company relative to the pavement on Main street will be disclosed.

It is the desire of the public works department to proceed with all possible speed in order that the work may be undertaken at an early date and the work completed before the close of the summer. While it will probably be more than the city could accomplish in the event that no satisfactory bid is received, there are large contracting firms which would have sufficient equipment and be prepared to finish the job in one season. It is planned in any event to get the concrete base all in in one year and to finish all sections of Main street that are disturbed in the present year.

Main and Church streets will be of the asphaltic type of concrete pavement with stone curb. Main will have an 8-inch base with a 3-inch top of bitulite asphalt while Church street will have a 6-inch base and a 2-inch top of the Topeka or Warrenite type. The cost of the Main street improvement is estimated at $106,425, and that of Church street $136,575. Carbon street, which extends easterly from the Main street viaduct to the oil tanks and the coal sheds of the Oneonta Coal and Supply company, will be paved for a distance of 450 feet, the street being narrowed to 30 feet in width. This will cost, according to the engineer's estimate, $4,531. This will be of re-inforced concrete.

The plans for the Center street pavement will at once be prepared by City Engineer Gurney. It is expected that the bituminous macadam of the penetration type similar to that on Elm and Maple streets will be adopted and that the plans and estimate will be in readiness for the public hearing on April 10.

WYCKOFF'S FLOWER SHOW

First Annual Affair Very Surprising—Visitors Number Seven Hundred.

The first annual Palm Sunday flower show of Wyckoff's Grove Street greenhouses was full of surprises for the visitors yesterday, and the attendance was a most pleasant surprise to Mr. Wyckoff, over seven hundred flower lovers visiting the greenhouses during the afternoon. The display was planned to be the first of an annual show, and with the approval of yesterday, Mr. Wyckoff promises an even more elaborate showing for Palm Sunday of next year.

The Grove Street greenhouses were filled with wonderful specimens of hot house flowers, all well arranged for inspection, and the house itself in perfect condition. There were the usual palms, ferns, lilies, sweet peas and potted plants, all of which seemed to be just a bit better than any seen before. And for Easter flowers there were hyacinths, daffodils, tulips, jonquils, spiraea, geraniums, baby's breath and many other beautiful flowers.

Many were the surprises in store for those who were not expecting the utmost in flower culture, and great the pleasure of those who found in the exhibition all that is best in flowers.

Fire Department Out Saturday.

The fire department was called to 35 West Broadway Saturday evening at about 5:20 o'clock where the roof of the dwelling house was on fire. The chimney had burned out and sparks had ignited the shingles, but there was little damage.

At the High School.

Third quarter tests will be held at the High school Tuesday and Wednesday. On Thursday night the school will close for the Easter recess, reopening on Monday, April 9.

One Killed, Many Injured; Passenger Train Crashes INTO FREIGHT TRAIN AT SIDNEY CENTER

George W. Mason, O. & W. Trainman Residing at Sidney Sustains Fatal Injury; Five Most Seriously Injured Rushed to Norwich Hospital; Engineer of Passenger Train Disregarded Orders Received at Sidney

One man killed and 25 injured, at least five of them seriously, was the toll of a serious wreck on the O. & W. railroad, occurring a short distance north of the station at Sidney Center Saturday evening, shortly after 8 o'clock, when passenger train No. 55, south-bound from Utica to Delhi, crashed head-on into a north-bound freight train, No. 161, a way freight from Hancock to Sidney, which was standing on the main at Sidney Center, being recoupled to proceed.

George W. Mason, aged 34 years, a trainman, residing at Sidney, was engaged in coupling up air connections on the freight train when the crash came and sustained injuries from which he died a few minutes later.

Five of the more seriously injured were hurried to the Norwich Memorial hospital aboard a special train made up at Sidney arriving there at 1:15 a. m. Sunday morning. They are: John H. Brown, aged 45 years, of Sidney, employed as fireman on the freight train, was caught between the engine and tender, sustaining a fracture of both legs just above the ankle. He was also cut about the head and neck.

George Boyd, aged 23 years and residing at Middletown, employed as trainman on the freight train, left hand crushed, necessitating its amputation at the wrist.

George McCoy, aged 70 years and residing at Oswego, employed as baggage man on the passenger train, badly bruised and shaken up.

George H. Goodrich, aged 54 years, residing at Walton, injured about the back and bruised.

Rev. John Taylor, a student at the Bible Training school at Johnson City, head cut, scalp being split open, exposing the skull and necessitating several stitches.

Disregarded Orders.

Passenger train 55, known as the Delhi Flyer, was in charge of Conductor Byron Ducolon of Utica, many years in the employ of the O. & W., and Engineer George Obenauer, also an old-time employee of the company. It left Sidney a few minutes late. It was drawn by engine 72 and consisted of a baggage car and two coaches, the latter being well filled with passengers.

Conductor Charles Titus of Sidney was in charge of the freight train, Robinson, also of Sidney was the engineer. They had stopped at Sidney Center to cut out some cars and the crew engaged in coupling the train together when the crash came.

Train 55 received orders on leaving Sidney to meet the way freight at Niles siding less than a mile north of Sidney Center station, and no explanation has yet been given why they ran past the meeting point. The train was already slackening its speed for the Sidney Center, or Maywood as the railroad company calls its station, stop when the collision occurred.

Trainman George Boyd and Conductor Titus were engaged in coupling up the engine when the collision occurred. Mr. Titus narrowly escaped.

Warns of Great White Way

Kay Laurel Says Model's Murder Shows the Peril There

BY KAY LAUREL

Former Public Beauty, Now a Star on Broadway.

New York, Mar. 22. — In the shadow of the shimmering lights of Broadway are enacted daily hundreds of tragedies, of which the Dorothy Keenan murder was just one of the many closing chapters.

For among the thousands attracted by the White Way lights—some just to watch and look on, some to feel the warmth of the glow, some to have their wings singed—are many who seek the easiest way.

And find it—the hardest. Then, on the other side of Broadway, they fall lower and lower, until completely engulfed in the maelstrom, they give in—

Victims of drugs, drink and other vices that sap them until the very end. On Broadway since 18, I know of these tragedies. Luckily my home training and natural reserve spared me from temptation. But many other girls weren't so fortunate.

They fell into the pitfalls—some voluntarily—but mostly victims of circumstance or the connivance of scoundrels. These are to be found in all guises from the fatherly old men—called "daddies"—to the slick-haired lounge lizards—human parasites, all.

When a young man, not listed in the social register, has no visible means of support, and yet seems always amply supplied with money, it's time for a girl to be careful.

But not all of them are.

Miss Lee Hillier was well known along Broadway. She lived uptown, but loved the glitter of the cabarets. She used to sneak off afternoons and come down to the popular "tea dances." Available, dancing partner made her life pleasant until she was found murdered in a hotel several years ago.

Several thousand dollars worth of her jewelry were missing. The police investigated, rounded up a gang of "house lizards" but never solved the mystery.

It still remains a closed book, resembling, in many ways, the murder of Dorothy Keenan, the model, who went under the name of Dorothy King; she was found dead, mysteriously chloroformed, and $10,000 worth of jewelry were missing.

Both women tried to blaze a path along the White Way that would make even Miss Broadway take notice. Both women finally succeeded—in death.

But the deepest tragedies come when young, naive girls, enticed in the heat of the Broadway world, become innocent victims of another's greed.

A young chorus girl I know, had been lured to a convent. She was told to wait when she met her job. She waited, after a long rehearsal, one of the other girls gave her a quilt, of

The next night the girls got word that she had died. Before she reached the home she had been lured to, she was dead, the name of which she had never heard.

She tried to break herself of the habit. But it had made her its slave. She went to another theatre. The feeling man there became obsessed with her. The money she received from him, she used only to purchase dope from a chorus man who was a regular on the side.

At last of the cure, she went to a sanitarium. But the habit gripped her again, even after she had taken the cure. Finally there was but one way out. She took it—by committing suicide.

Another girl, refined and cultured, who once played in the same company with me, became friendly with an apparently charming old gentleman known as "daddy." His ruling passion was gambling.

Not many weeks elapsed before his younger companion contracted a fondness for watching the wheel go round. With bated breath she would stand for hours to see whether red or black came up.

It was not long before she wanted to spend all her time in the gambling dens. Even old "daddy" couldn't keep up with her. He finally dropped her—as most "daddies" eventually do.

Then she had to go it alone. It's amazing how many dives there were for all sorts of victims. When the girl couldn't get into the more fashionable resorts, she went down the scale.

Down, down, down, until now . . . She's at the very bottom. But the real sold diggers are not in the chorus or leading roles of the big shows. They are not on the stage at all. They live in New York's most stuporous apartments—just off Broadway—supported by men of wealth. They are unknown to the world at large until the end comes—as it did in the Keenan case.

Then the focus of the public's eye is turned on their affair for a while—Only to be dismissed by the glitter of the bright lights which keep shining on Broadway, dazzling, drawing on, singing and throwing aside.

SAVE YOUR MONEY

And Beware of "Get-Rich-Quick Schemes" Advice of Government Director.

Washington, Mar. 22.—"If I could send a message into every home in the country," said Law Waller, Jr., director of the United States Government Savings system, "it would embody the essence of all the wise advice of the world's sages on the subject of saving, including that most necessary advice to avoid the plausible, sleek, lustrous person with something to sell which will make cents grow into dollars as it by magic."

I would say to the people that any financial proposition that must be rushed through on the spur of the moment, that cannot stand inquiry and investigation, can be set down as questionable and unsafe.

"It would seem that anybody, from the cradle to the grave, has been told over and over again the benefits of saving. The United States Government Savings system hopes to bring to every home the advantages of thrift, and to this end it has provided a means of saving in Treasury savings certificates. They are securities backed by the credit of the nation, put out in denominations within the reach of all, and yielding a good interest return. The government does not ask you to invest without investigating, and in a booklet recently issued it tells all about these saving securities, and just what the purchaser of saving certificates will get for his money."

The government entered the saving field with postal savings to accommodate the large class of people; it enlarged that field during the war by selling war saving stamps; it now continues in the saving field to meet a demand of the people which cannot be unmet. The widespread success of the government savings system thus far is the best reason for its existence, and for the treasury department's further efforts to make the United States a saving nation."

Quality is the magic word. It's the rich fragrance and delightful flavor that have made Bona tea so popular in these parts.
